

Wiring the city

The government is mulling a revamp of electricity tariffs that would see those who use the most pay more. Consumption varies considerably across different sectors of the economy, and keeping us all cool remains the single biggest drain on the power grids.

SCMP graphic: Simon Scarr

Source: Electrical and Mechanical Services Department